“For the Mitzvah We Performed”

by Rabbi Daniel Alder

One of the best-known prayers recited on Yom Kippur is the confessional prayer known as the Al Chet, “For the sin we committed by...” We repeatedly confess to many transgressions, some of which are applicable but all of which can overwhelm us with a sense of guilt and despair.

Rabbi Joseph Telushkin suggests that we also focus on the good things we do, and the good things that we can do. He offers us the following prayers for our recitation and contemplation:

-For the mitzvah we performed by remembering the good someone did for us even when we were upset with him or her.

-For the mitzvah we performed by stopping someone from teasing or humiliating another person, or using a hurtful nickname.

-For the mitzvah we performed by standing up for justice when we saw someone mistreated.

-For the mitzvah we performed by knowing embarrassing information about someone and not passing it on.

-For the mitzvah we performed by donating to charity cheerfully.

-For the mitzvah we performed by returning a lost object to its owner.

For all these things, God, please remember and inspire us to do more acts like these in the year ahead.

-For the mitzvah we performed by visiting the sick and offering emotional support to them and their family.

-For the mitzvah we performed by studying Torah.

-For the mitzvah we performed by striving to be punctual even when it was difficult, so as to avoid keeping someone waiting.

-For the mitzvah we performed by accepting responsibility for the wrong we have committed, and not blaming our behavior on others.

-For the mitzvah we performed by helping someone to find work.

-For the mitzvah we performed by reserving our highest praise of others for when they do kind deeds.

For all these things, God, please remember and inspire us to do more acts like these in the year ahead.

-For the mitzvah we performed by not exaggerating the bad traits of those with whom we disagree or whom we dislike.

-For the mitzvah we performed by forgiving those who hurt us and sought our forgiveness.

-For the mitzvah we performed by asking those whom we have hurt for forgiveness.

-For the mitzvah we performed by helping someone in an unhappy frame of mind to laugh.

-For the mitzvah we performed by treating our family with the same courtesy and kindness we extend to guests.

-For the mitzvah we performed when we were tempted to do something dishonest, and refrained.

For all these things, God, please remember and inspire us to do more acts like these in the year ahead.

And may this year bring blessings of health, peace, and joy to us, to our community, to our country, to Israel, and to the world. ~

Simchat Torah Honorees

Richard Goldberg

Our Chatan Beresheet is from Brooklyn where his grandfather and father served as presidents of Congregation Shearith Israel. Richard graduated from Franconia College in New Hampshire (including two years at UC Berkeley in the 1960s). After a decade in the family retail business, Richard entered the collectible wine business. He is married to Robin and they are the parents of Zoe and Alex. Richard sounds the shofar for us on Rosh Hashanah, has served on synagogue committees and is a regular at Shabbat services.

Deborah Newman

Our Kallah Torah was born and raised in Quincy, Massachusetts where her family belonged to the local Conservative Synagogue and she was active in Young Judea. After graduating from Brandeis University, Deborah embarked on a career in education, and she still substitute teaches in the New York City public schools. Deborah joined the Brotherhood Synagogue over two decades ago and has served on the Social Action and Israel committees, attended many adult education classes, volunteered in our homeless shelter, founded and leads the Shabbat Club and regularly attends services. ~

Brotherhood Synagogue Israel Programming 5776: September 2015- October 2016

A year ago in this Bulletin, Rabbi Alder wrote that the Brotherhood Synagogue would dedicate itself to a year of Israel-themed programming. Since then, nearly 1,400 people participated in Israel-themed events and religious services including Brotherhood members and non-members, Jews and non-Jews, and visitors from around the world. Each month, our Bulletin published a personal story of Israel that reached an even greater number of readers, culminating this month with a column written by member, Ann Schwartz.

Through food, music, literature, technology, environmental conservation, nature, business, history, religion, education, geopolitics, film, sociology, human rights, personal experiences, anti-Semitism, photography, journalism, and philanthropy, the flower of Israel opened to us, linking our Brotherhood community to world Jewry and to Israel.

Our success resulted with the help of other Brotherhood members from the Shabbaton, Special Events, Social Action, and Interfaith Committees as well as the Shabbat and Book Clubs, Brotherhood Hebrew School, and the synagogue staff, who partnered together with us, the Israel Committee. We are extremely grateful to all.

Israel Story: A Tale of Two Visits

by Ann Schwartz

In the past six years I've visited Israel twice... and each time had a different experience.

My introduction to the Jewish homeland was when my husband, Norm, and I took the Brotherhood trip in December 2009. I was a bit worried: I thought I was going to hate being “stuck” with the other people in the group, being on a bus much of the time, and being told what to see and when. Much to my surprise, the opposite happened. I bonded with the group—making friends, and sorely missing everyone when the trip was over—I didn't mind the bus, and I actually liked being led around and “bossed” by our tour leader, the indomitable Raya Don. In ten days, we all saw a lot of Israel, from the Western Wall to the Dead Sea to Masada to the Golan Heights...you name it. All the major sights, special tours, and lots of edification.

My second visit was very different. In May of 2015 I was invited by Dr. Yossi Elran to be the guest speaker at the Recreational Math, Puzzles and Games Conference of the Davidson Institute—part of the Weizmann Institute of Science—in Rehovot (I'm an expert on a fascinating type of paper puzzle called flexagons.) Soon after Dr. Elran met me at Ben Gurion Airport I was ensconced in Rehovot's best hotel, which of course served fabulous Israeli breakfasts. (Looking for the tongs one morning to pick up a roll, a hotel employee behind the counter smiled and said, “Use your hands, this is Israel.”) Just like on my first trip, I felt instantly at home, but instead of being a tourist and seeing many landmarks but meeting few Israelis, now I was in close contact with and getting to know and love the “natives.”

They welcomed me with open arms. Yossi's wife Michal, who also works at the Davidson, took me to lunch every day. I had dinner at their home with their two youngest daughters. I met many other people at the Davidson, and during the day when the conference was open to the public, scores of children, both Jewish and Muslim.

Back in the hotel, I often found myself in the tenth floor lounge staring out a window that was opposite the Rehovot train station. I would watch the commuters hurry out, trainload after trainload: young women in their army uniforms, students in jeans, workers in their office clothes. Why was I so mesmerized? I was looking at “real” Israelis coming home. They were like Yossi and Michal and the student whose name I thought was “Oy” until I finally got it right: “Roy.” I was a part of them and they were a part of me.

My feelings were so intense I wrote new lyrics to the song “The House I Live In” (The movie of the same name starring Frank Sinatra was shown at Brotherhood.):

What is Yisrael to me?
A piece of land, a map I see
The Middle East democracy
What is Yisrael to me?

The home I visit, their warmth and love and care
The laughter of their children and the freedom in the air.

The payot and the headscarves, the church and mosque I see
The temples all around me, that's Yisrael to me.

The bustle of the cities, the kibbutzim so sweet
The workers and the soldiers, and the traffic in the streets
The wailing of the sirens, the danger and the tears
The dream that's been a-growing for more than sixty years.

The hope for peace for always, a country brave and strong
An island of the modern in a region filled with wrong
The Wall, the Mount of Olives, the sacred sites
we see
But especially the landsmen, that's Yisrael to me.

Yossi, Michael, and their three youngest children visited New York City this summer and Norm and I were so happy to see them. 🌊

We look forward to seeing you at

Dinner Speaker on Friday,

Director of the Jacobs Technion-
Cornell Institute.

Six years ago, Israel was almost out of water. Today there's plenty to go around, thanks to Israel's advances in desalination (removing the salt from seawater) and recycling of wastewater. 25% of Israel's fresh water is now created through desalination and Israel has become the world leader in recycling wastewater for agriculture. DID YOU KNOW that an Israeli company has built the US's largest desalination plant in California? Good for Israel! And because Israel is happy to share what it's learned - Good for All of Us! This third installment of Brotherhood's popular Voices of the Sacred interfaith concert series features a rare opportunity to see one of the world's best "Jewish" choirs, the Makhelat HaShachar (Shinonome Choir) of Japan.

The centerpiece of the Beit Shalom religious movement in Japan, aka The Japan Christian Friends of Israel, the all-volunteer choir draws its members from all across Japan. Nitsana Darshan-Leitner: Shurat HaDin

Please join the Israel Committee in welcoming Nitsana Darshan-Leitner, Esq., founder and president of the Israel based civil rights organization, Shurat HaDin - The Israel Law Center.

Shurat HaDin leads the legal fight against terror financing, anti-Israel boycott campaigns (BDS), and a multitude of law fare tactics utilized against the Jewish State by its enemies. Shurat HaDin has represented hundreds of terror victims in legal actions against terror organizations and their financial supporters and has recovered more than one hundred and fifty million dollars in compensation on their behalf. Currently they are pursuing lawsuits and legal actions against Hamas, Islamic Jihad, the PLO, The Palestinian Authority, Hezbollah, Iran, Syria, Egypt, North Korea, UBS, Lebanese Canadian Bank and the Bank of China. The cases are being litigated in Israeli, American, Canadian and European courts. A recent judgment and damages ruling against the PLO, yet to be collected, totals $655.5 million.

Join us to hear about the important work Nitsana Darshan-Leitner and her organization are doing in pursuit of justice for terror victims.

President's Post

by Trudi Bartow

On Friday, September 16, over 500 people attended a special service to honor Phil Rothman's 36 years at Brotherhood Synagogue. At the conclusion of the service, the Rabbi announced a very special new initiative, The Rothman Educational Fund to Benefit the Hebrew School. This endowed fund was established by the Board of Trustees in July 2016 to commemorate Phil Rothman's 36 years at Brotherhood Synagogue where, among all of his varied responsibilities, his greatest passion has always been youth and the Hebrew School. The Rothman Educational Fund honors Phil's extraordinary influence as an educator and friend to decades of students and the hope is that it will impact and benefit future students in perpetuity when our goal is reached. The Rothman Educational Fund will support all costs associated with the Hebrew School including the Lab Program, generating new and innovative programming, subsidizing faculty salaries, tuition, and the need for additional space.

I think we can all agree that Phil is a pillar of our community and creating The Rothman Educational Fund is the start of a legacy that will ensure the future of our Hebrew School. As the "Year of Phil" progresses, you will learn more about the Fund and how you can contribute!

If you were unable to attend the amazing event that was held in September, I wanted to give you a taste of what we experienced. Below is an excerpt of the song Our Phil (sung to the tune of Bill from the musical Showboat), as performed by Brotherhood Hebrew School student, Sivan Cohen:

I used to dream that they would cancel classes,
take off my glasses, go home
I wouldn't have to study the Torah, make plywood menorahs
Studying Ivrit would just be something I did while I watched TV
No kid's ever said that the alef-bet's like a Taylor Swift song that you can't forget.

Then along came Phil, the coolest kind of Jew
He deserves a star on Second Avenue
His smiling face, his charm and grace
In my humble opinion, you'd want him in your minyan

He's just our Phil, no ordinary guy
No other congregation's got a guy like him
He's always there with facial hair
They keep on returning to lunching and learning
And you can't deny he's one amazing guy 🌊

Thank you for Supporting Brotherhood

Each one of us is blessed with the ability to make a difference in the lives of those around us—and when we join together for the good of our community, the results are profound.

Almost 500 members gave generously to our Brotherhood Synagogue Annual Fund for 2015-2016, making it possible for our community to thrive. Together, we are able to maintain our beautiful space for prayer and celebration, for learning and solace and inspiration. Together, we teach our toddlers, offer our Tikvah Program for children with special needs, and provide transportation to religious services for those who would otherwise be housebound. Together, we shelter the homeless on cold winter nights, break bread—or matzoh!—with people of other faiths, and provide adult education that deepens our understanding and broadens our horizons. Together, we keep the walls painted and the elevator working. Together, we keep the lights on—literally and figuratively.

Our dues do not pay the full cost of keeping Brotherhood running. Together, we gave almost $600,000 to cover the difference. To all those who gave: Thank you for keeping our Synagogue strong for now and for tomorrow.

Hebrew School News: Tishri – Rosh Hashana, Yom Kippur, Sukkot: The Festival of Booths – and more!

Our Hebrew School is off to an amazing start! We have a record number of Hebrew School students & their energy and enthusiasm is palpable! This month, October 2016, overlaps with the Hebrew month of Tishri—a month that is jam-packed with Jewish festivals—including some of the most significant of our Jewish year!

Rosh Hashana begins on Sunday evening October 2 and continues through Tuesday evening October 4. Yom Kippur begins with Kol Nidre on Tuesday evening October 11 through the evening of Wednesday October 12. Yom Kippur is followed by a multiplicity of festivals! The first, and most widely recognized and celebrated is Sukkot, which begins on the 15th of Tishri. When we celebrate the festivals of Tishri, we connect ourselves to our ancestors of biblical days. For example, in the parasha Emor, found in the Book of Leviticus Chapter 23, we are given very specific directions how to celebrate Sukkot—beginning with line 39, which reads: “Mark, on the fifteenth day of the seventh month (Tishri), when you have gathered in the yield of your land, you shall observe the festival of the Lord seven days: a complete rest on the first day, and a complete rest on the eighth day. On the first day you shall take the product of hadar trees [etrog], branches of palm trees, boughs of leafy trees [myrtle], and willows of the brook, and you shall rejoice before the Lord your G-d seven days. You shall observe it as a festival of the Lord for seven days in the year; you shall observe it in the seventh month as a law for all time, throughout the ages. You shall live in booths seven days; all citizens in Israel shall live in booths, in order that future generations may know that I made the Israelite people live in booths when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, I the Lord your G-d.”

Our Hebrew School children will join in the decoration of the Synagogue’s majestic Sukkah and will learn the blessing for the arbaah minim (the four species)—the lulav (comprised of the palm, myrtle and willow) and the etrog. The rabbis offer additional symbolic significance for the arbaah minim. Each of the four species was interpreted as representing different parts of the body: the willow represents the mouth, uttering prayer; the etrog, the heart, seat of wisdom and understanding; the palm, the spine, symbolic of upright character; and the myrtle, the eyes, tools of learning and enlightenment.

Another interpretation of the arbaah minim of the rabbis, equates smell with righteous deeds and taste with learning. The etrog, with both taste and smell represents the person who is knowledgeable and performs good deeds. The myrtle, with smell but no taste, is the person who is righteous, but ignorant. The palm has a taste, but no smell, indicative of one who is learned, but does not engage in righteous acts. The willow, with neither taste nor smell, symbolizes one who is neither learned, nor engages in righteous acts. As our Hebrew School students continue their study of Torah, it is our hope that they will, like the etrog, engage in righteous deeds and be learned in the Torah.

On Wednesday October 19 @ 5:30 pm, we invite you to join us, with our Hebrew School children, as we celebrate Sukkot with our annual Pizza in the Hut celebration. There we will perform the mitzvah of “dwelling” in the Sukkah and reciting the blessing for the lulav and the etrog.

Let us rejoice together during this, our season of joy—zman simchataynu—the Festival of Sukkot. Chag Sameach!

Nursery School Thoughts

by Stacie Schinfeld

A new schedule. New people, new teachers, and new activities. It was all so overwhelming . . . for me. My daughter was totally fine. On day one, she knew exactly what she wanted to wear and what she wanted me to pack for lunch. And as I ushered her into a classroom full of strangers, all I got was a quick kiss and a wave in my face, “Bye, Mommy! See you after school!” Like she’s been doing this for years. Like she didn’t want me to cramp her style.

“Okay, love yoooooou,” I called after her desperately. Too late. She was already immersed in necklace making. My baby was gone. In her place was a brave and excited “threenager” seemingly prepared for life’s milestones better than her mommy.

So this is it. My daughter’s in nursery school. How did we get here? How is she so grown up? When did I become a grown up? And how am I supposed to figure out what to pack for lunch every day? Every. Single. Day. I want to put a post-it note in each lunchbox apologizing for the fact that Sophie’s entire meal is orange and that we’ve tried (and failed) to introduce more green vegetables. Her poor eating habits can’t possibly be her pizza, pasta, and ice cream-loving mother’s fault, right? SO not my fault. OK possibly my fault. But I digress.

To everything there is a season. Newness can be scary. But, ultimately, so rewarding as well. And as we prepare to usher in the Jewish new year, it’s a great time to try new things and take on new challenges. I’ll always worry about the future. But I’m ready for what lies ahead. I just need a good pep talk from my daughter first. ~

♪ Cantor’s Notes: One of Japan’s Sacred Jewels Visits Brotherhood ♪

by Cantor Mike Weis

In the summer of 2011, only a few short months after the tsunami that wreaked havoc upon Japan and resulted in the Fukushima nuclear disaster, I was privileged to attend a concert in Toronto by a small choir from Japan called Makhelat HaShachar. They had been billed as the best Jewish choir in the world that wasn’t Jewish. By the end of the concert, not only did they live up to the billing, there was not a dry eye in the house. I vowed that if I ever had the chance to bring them to my own synagogue, I would do it.

On Sunday, October 30 at 7 pm, the Makhelat HaShachar, also known as the Shinonome Chorus, of Beit Shalom in Japan will visit Brotherhood for its only New York City appearance on its upcoming US tour. The event will be the third in our popular Voices of the Sacred concert series.

There’s nothing about Makhelat HaShachar that conforms to expectation. First, Beit Shalom is a Christian sect, not Jewish. It was founded in 1946 as the result of a spiritual vision received by its founder, Rev. Takeji Otsuki. In that vision, he received what he believed was a revelation from God about His eternal plan for Israel.

Building upon that experience, he organized the Japan Christian Friends of Israel, or Beit Shalom Japan. All the members of the group pray daily for the peace of Jerusalem and for the welfare of the Jewish people out of the firm conviction that there can be no peace in the world without peace in Jerusalem.

The jewel in the crown of Beit Shalom is their world-famous choir, the Makhelat HaShachar, which consists of members selected out of seventy choirs all over Japan. When Rabbi Alder and I, along with members of the Interfaith Committee, first met their organizer, Kan Matsumoto, on a scouting visit to the US earlier this year, he told us a couple startling facts.

First, despite the fact that they are a Christian organization, in deference to their stated mission, they will only perform in synagogues and do not accept a fee for their appearance. More shocking, though, is that all the members of the group are volunteers who pay their own way to be a part of a tour that will take them by plane and bus all across North America, from California to Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New York and Toronto.

Keep an eye out in the weekly emails for videos and other audio samples of the choir and be sure to visit our website and purchase your tickets. Tickets are $20 and all proceeds will go towards Brotherhood’s music programs, which will also feature Neshama Carlebach in February and two chamber music concerts presented by Salon Sanctuary—in January and in May. It’s going to be an action-packed year for world-class music at Brotherhood. Enjoy! ~
